

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A process for activating speech recognition in a terminal includes automatically activating speech recognition when the terminal is used and turning the speech recognition off after a time period has elapsed after activation. The process also takes the context of the terminal into account when the terminal is activated and defines a subset of allowable voice commands which correspond to the current context of the device.

5

006747 4404260